NEW BUSINESS GROW UP FAST IN THIS COUNTY

New York—The spirit of individual enterprise is still flourishing in Coffee county, judging by the rate at which new businesses have been springing up.

Local residents, with the urge to be on their own, have halved the county's non-farm business population to a new high.

The story is told in a joint report, just issued by the Department of Commerce and by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, based on tax reports submitted by employers under the Old Age and Survivors Insurance Program for 1956.

Many Die

Many of the new ventures do not survive the difficult first five years, but enough do to justify the risk entailed.

Coffee county, by virtue of this net growth, has a total of 354 business enterprises in which there are one or more employees, the report shows.

It marks a big increase over the 308 recorded three years earlier, when the same Federal agencies made their previous study.

The gain, amounting to 14.9 percent, was greater than that attained generally in the United States, an average of 6.4 percent. It topped, also, the State of Alabama gain, 8.4 percent.

Well Established

Small business is well established in Coffee county, the figures show. There are 330 firms, or 93 percent of the total, with less than 20 employees each. They form the backbone of the business community.

Their concentration is greater than in most parts of the United States, where small business constitutes 91 percent of the number of going enterprises. It amounts to 90 percent in the State of Alabama.

Many Small

Of the local establishments, 200 employ from one to three people each, 77 have from four to seven and 43 from eight to nineteen. The remainder are larger concerns.

Coffee county's business firms provide painful employment for 3,748 people, the report indicates. Only those subject to social security coverage are included in that total. Others are now being brought in through recent expansion of the coverage.

Nationally, it appears, we are still a nation of small business people. Three out of every four firms have fewer than ten employees and only two percent employ fifty or more.

VOTE ON WHEAT QUOTA WILL BE HELD JULY 23

As required by present law, a wheat marketing quota referendum has been announced for July 23, 1959. Lester Gunter, chairman of the Coffee county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced today.

Marketing quotas for the 1960 wheat crop have been proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture, as required by legislation whenever the available supply of wheat is more than 80 percent above normal supply. However, quotas will not become effective unless they are approved by at least two thirds of the producers voting in the referendum.

If quotas are approved for the 1960 wheat crop, it will mark the seventh consecutive year they have been used for wheat. Wheat quotas and acreage allotments apply only in the 30 so-called "commercial" wheat states, of which Alabama is one.

The present law, the chairman explained, states that, to be eligible to vote in the referendum, a grower must expect to have more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest as grain in 1960. A wheat grower who signs an application under the feed wheat provision permitting him to produce up to 30 acres of wheat as feed on his farm will not be eligible to vote. Every wheat grower will be informed of the individual wheat allotment for his farm in advance of the referendum date.

As usual, chairman Gunter says, the ASC committee will set up one polling place for the county, which will be at all the ASC Office, in New Brockton. Due to the small number of wheat growers in the county, it would not be profitable to have a polling place established in every community.

If quotas are approved, in the referendum, the present law provides that farmers who comply with their wheat acreage allotments will be eligible to market all of their wheat without restriction. A grower who exceeds his allotment will be subject to marketing quota penalties on his excess wheat if he has more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest as grain.

If quotas are not approved, there will be no restrictions on wheat marketings.

Independence Day

FOR THE FIFTH AMENDMENT

The benefits of the U. S. Constitution to every American should be remembered every day of the year and there is no better time than Independence Day, otherwise known as July Fourth, to count them over again.

By a coincidence of history it was on the Fourth day of July that a document was signed which led many years later to adoption of a set of laws which have since come to be known as the Bill of Rights of the Constitution.

And in the past few years the Bill of Rights has come under attack from sources far more dangerous than Communism. It has been attacked by persons representing themselves as — and who probably sincerely believe themselves to be — intense patriots.

This attack has centered around the Fifth Amendment, guaranteeing that no man shall be required to testify against himself. Television screens and the nation's newspapers have been filled with pictures of notorious gangsters called before a Congressional committee and refusing to answer.

CLEVER PROPAGANDA

If it had been so planned, there could not have been a more clever campaign of propaganda designed to destroy confidence in the most cherished freedoms you and I possess — freedoms gained only after hundreds of years of struggling by the English-speaking peoples.

If there had been no Fifth Amendment these same witnesses could have taken the equally easy expedient to tell a lie. On the other hand, you and I, honest citizens, could be hauled before an inquisitorial body headed by a man like the late Senator McCarthy and be made the victim of a rehearsal of the infamous Spanish Inquisition.

Or consider the possibility that you may be on a cross-country trip by automobile, taken into custody in a strange city by dishonest policemen (there are such), hauled to the innermost recesses of a jail, clubbed into a confession to a crime you never heard of, and the confession used against you in court. The Fifth Amendment protects Americans against just such incidents which happen daily behind the Iron Curtain.

Without the Fifth Amendment, any murderer or robber could escape prosecution just as readily as now because his lack of truth would be the same, with or without the Fifth Amendment.

THE OTHER SIDE OF IT

Yet while we are intent upon protecting the rights of citizens under the Constitution, we must be equally careful not to tip the scales of justice against police whose job it is to enforce laws which stem from the Constitution.

Any policeman, constable or deputy sheriff deserves to have good citizens stand behind him, because there is a greater principle involved than the individual law enforcement officer himself. It is the principle of government by law rather than government by individuals.

A policeman, deputy or constable cannot enforce the law unless he knows that honest citizens will stand behind him when they are called for service on a jury. He cannot use force, when necessary, to make an arrest if he knows he, in turn, will be arrested for use of force.

If he cannot use force, when necessary, there is no such thing as law enforcement.

comply with their wheat acreage allotments will be eligible to market all of their wheat without restriction. A grower who exceeds his allotment will be subject to marketing quota penalties on his excess wheat if he has more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest as grain.

If quotas are not approved, there will be no restrictions on wheat marketings.

NEWSPAPERS IN PARTNERSHIP WITH DEALERS

The hometown dealer, who represents a giant national manufacturer, has the help of a partner that makes it possible for him to stay in business in spite of centralization of many retail outlets.

The partner of the small dealer is the community newspaper. For, more than any other institution, the newspaper has a part in the continued survival of small city dealers.

As the major force which works to build and maintain a trade area, the local newspaper gives the small dealer the basis for existence. Through the newspaper the people of a community are constantly reminded that they can obtain all brands of goods in their hometown.

Of course it would be less trouble and more efficient for the big manufacturers to maintain a few dealerships in major cities. Apparently, some manufacturers have attempted to encourage such a trend by concentrating national advertising in metropolitan newspapers, magazines, and other general media.

Fortunately for small dealers, the policy has been a failure. Sales volume has significantly dropped when manufacturers have attempted to centralize all national advertising. Regional advertising does not finalize sales in the local community.

The public simply reduces its buying when advertising is reduced on the local level. Thus, both manufacturer and the small dealer suffer when community newspapers do not carry a share of national advertising.

It is bothersome for a manufacturer to place advertising in thousands of small newspapers. But the partnership between the small dealer and the community newspaper produces sales, and that is what the manufacturer is most interested in.

And that is why the small dealer is justified in insisting that his national advertising allocation be spent in his own community newspaper.

CAMP MEETING OF METHODISTS STARTS JULY 9

An imposing army of workers will be at Bethlehem Camp Meeting for 1959, 12 miles north of Bonifay.

The workers will be Rev. Don Morris, an outstanding Methodist pastor from Oklawaha, Mich.; Rev. Wayne Patton, approved Methodist evangelist of the Kentucky Conference; Rev. Dwight Ferguson, missionary evangelist and world traveler.

The last census showed that 32.4 percent of the female population of Elba, over age 14, were in the local labor force. Since then the ratio has increased.

Elsewhere in the United States, only 28.9 percent of the female population over 14 was part of the labor force, and in the East South Central States, 24.4 percent.

The Fourth of July Holiday Is Marked

ELBA WOMEN TURN TO JOBS OUTSIDE HOME

New York—More and more, Elba women are getting out of the home to take jobs in stores, offices and factories.

Each year the number of them in industry has grown larger, to the point where nearly one out of every three people in the labor force today is a woman.

Two-Year Study

Details on this social revolution come from the Department of Labor, the Department of Commerce and from the National Manpower Council, which spent two years on a study it call "Womanpower."

The latest official count shows 31.1 percent of all local jobs in Elba to be held down by women.

This is a higher proportion than was found in most parts of the United States, the average being 27.4 percent. In the East South Central States, the ratio was 24.6 percent.

Changing Patterns

All sections of the country have witnessed, in varying degrees, the changing pattern that has made commonplace woman's participation in all phases of activity. Currently, women are to be found in every professional field as well as in Congress, on assembly lines and farms, in restaurants, banks and schools, and in the armed services.

An indication of the trend, and how rapidly it has progressed, is seen in the fact that there are now over 22 million women in the work force, compared with 5 million in 1940.

Have More Time

The most dramatic part of this rise has been among married women. Several factors have contributed. Women at home have more time on their hands than they had formerly. Modern labor-saving machines have relieved them of lengthy household chores. Prepared or semi-prepared foods, even ready-cooked meals, are now available to them. But the most important factor, perhaps, is that a job is a source of extra money and a means of satisfying the hunger for the luxuries of life.

The last census showed that 32.4 percent of the female population of Elba, over age 14, were in the local labor force. Since then the ratio has increased.

Elsewhere in the United States, only 28.9 percent of the female population over 14 was part of the labor force, and in the East South Central States, 24.4 percent.

Voters Are 98% For Coffee District

Supervisors Charles A. Mallory, Marion J. Sanders, Ira Allen, Elmer Bryan and Martin Moates of Coffee County met with Julian Brown, State Soil Conservation Committee June 11, in Enterprise.

The supervisors met with Mr. Brown for the purpose of organizing the Coffee County Soil Conservation District. 98 percent of the cooperators voting in Coffee county recently voted to have Coffee county as a District.

Coffee county was formerly a part of the Wiregrass Soil Conservation District along with Geneva, Houston, Henry, Dale and Pike. As a part of the Wiregrass District, each county had only one supervisor. It is felt that County Districts with more than one supervisor to serve each County District is an improvement over the Multi-county districts.

Elba and the rest of Coffee county is in the midst of plans for a two-day Fourth of July weekend.

Dorsey Trailers is shut down for the entire week except for a nucleus of office workers.

The Merchants Committee of the Elba Chamber of Commerce decided upon store closings in Elba Saturday when they found this favored by the majority and that stores in neighboring cities would be closed the same time.

No program or celebration is planned in Elba as hundreds of people plan to spend the weekend visiting relatives or entertaining guests, or week-end jaunts to the seashore, or fishing trips.

Appropriate programs are planned in the churches Sunday.

PROPOSED LAW ON TAX IS HIT BY PRESTWOOD

The proposed legislation to take the state out of the ad valorem tax field would cause thousands of old people and the other needy in Alabama to go hungry, Pen. and Sec. Com. Alvin T. Prestwood said today.

"The major portion of the ad valorem tax revenues that go to the general fund and the revenues that go to old age pensions from the Confederate pension fund would be taken away from the aged and other needy people," he declared.

Prestwood said that the department presently budgets more than two million dollars for old age pensions out of the residue in Confederate pension fund which is derived from one mill of the state's ad valorem tax. This brings in nearly four million dollars in federal funds or a total of about six million dollars for the state's aged, Prestwood added.

The Commissioner made it clear that under Title 49, Section 17, (26), the residue in proceeds from the levy of the one mill tax for Confederate soldiers and their widows is appropriated for the old age program.

Prestwood pointed out, however, that this would not be the sole loss to the aged and the needy, because the Department of Pensions and Security depends heavily on the general fund for appropriations for the needy. He said that the approximately $6 and one-half million, which the general fund receives annually from ad valorem tax (tax could represent in the main loss to the Pensions and Security program, including the old rolls.

Prestwood said if as much of $5 million of the $6.5 million were lost to the program, it together with the loss from the Confederate pension fund, could mean a loss of as much as $13 million in Federal Money, or a total loss of about $20 million for the pensions and security program.

He estimates effects would be to cut old age pensions from the present average of about $44 by about 25 percent. He said it was probable that other needy people would receive even more drastic cuts.

"In other words," Prestwood emphasized, "the loss of ad valorem tax revenues by the State general fund and the Confederate pension fund would mean taking this much more out of the mouths of the aged and other needy persons."

GETTING THE MOST... FROM YOUR GARDEN

By Lyman N. White

ASSOCIATED SEED GROWERS

Plants are no more exempt from diseases than we are, meaning by disease any upset in normal functions or growth processes. Happily, like ourselves, garden plants are healthy most of the time, and many plant diseases can be controlled, although the old rule about "an ounce of prevention" applies with even greater force in the garden, for many diseases cannot be cured, once they have invaded your plants.

Most plant diseases are caused by some outside organism, that is, a virus, bacteria, or fungus; but some are nutritional, caused by too much or too little plant food in the soil, often by a deficiency of some minor element, like manganese, iron, or boron, of which only a trace is needed. Prevention is the best control, though sometimes spraying with malathion and avermectin can kill the insects or, if possible, use resistant varieties. Aphids, leaf-hoppers, and various beetles are the chief insect culprits, and they can be checked by regular dusting with malathion and avermectin, available under several brand names at garden stores. Remove and destroy diseased plants. Plant breeders have developed varieties that are resistant to certain virus diseases. Topcrop and Tenderloin 15 are among the newer bean varieties resistant to bean mosaic. Ohio MS 200 cucumber is resistant to cucumber mosaic, and Yolo Wonder A is a pepper variety resistant to tobacco mosaic.

Some diseases may be spread by you yourself. The virus that causes mosaic in tomatoes also infects the tobacco plant; if you have been transplanting or pruning tomato plants, wash your hands before transplanting or pruning tomato plants.

A large group of blights, mildews, molds, smuts, and rusts are caused by fungus organisms which can be controlled by chemical dusts and sprays. Look for the ingredients malathion, ferbam, maneb, captan or zinc among the garden chemicals at your garden store; they are the active agents of the modern fungicides and are sold under various brand names. Read and follow carefully the instructions on the labels; they will tell you what diseases the material will control, when to apply, and how much.

Other soil-borne diseases invade growing plants through the root system. Among these are the fusarium wilts of tomatoes, peas, and carrots, and the damping-off of seedlings. These are caused by fungi which can be controlled by chemical dusts and sprays. Look for the ingredients malathion, ferbam, maneb, captan or zinc among the garden chemicals at your garden store; they are the active agents of the modern fungicides and are sold under various brand names. decorative touch and were most effective against the chocolate walls and tawny draperies of the living room. The bride, dressed in black, cut with a deep cowl collar and a white, presented with a gift of linen.

The guest list included: Mrs. Lamar Rainer Jr., Mrs. Oscar Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Tom Beale, Mrs. Freddie Rainer, Miss Ann Payne, Mrs. Joe Meacham, Mrs. George Lamar Collier, Mrs. Jack Vaughan, Mrs. Donald Crook, Mrs. Bill Bullard, Mrs. Robert Cannon, Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. James DeVane, Mrs. Josh Tatum, Mrs. Buddy Windham, Mrs. Oliver Williams, Mrs. Charles Harper Sr., Mrs. Charles Ellis and Mrs. John Harper.

Clarence Owen Egerton gave his daughter in marriage. Her wedding dress of Chantilly lace was made over from a gown with elongated waistline, long sleeves and a bateau neck-line trimmed in sequins. The skirt was styled with a deep ruffle in front and alternating ruffles of lace and nylon tulle. The chapel-length train was edged with lace. Her fingertip veil fell from a dainty scalloped lace cap. She carried a white satin covered. Bride topped with a white orchid.

Miss Anne Swicord was the bride's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. W. P. Cranford, of Dothan, Mrs. M. W. Moss of Montgomery, Mrs. E. T. Guldere of Hattiesburg, Miss, all sisters of the bride. Dianne Swicord was the flower girl.

The attendants were pink "beauty dresses with matching slippers and head pieces. Their bouquets of white carnations and lilies were backed with pink and white mums. The flower girl wore a similar dress and carried a basket of rose petals showered with ribbon streamers.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds received informally in the church vestibule before leaving on a wedding trip to Daytona Beach, Fla. They now are residing at 201 E. Selma St., Dothan.

Among the parties given for the bride prior to the wedding was a tea at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Roy Driesler, a shower with Mrs. Barbara Watkins and Miss Anne Swicord as hostesses; a shower at the home of Miss Patsy Powell and a rehearsal party given by Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cranford.

INSTALLMENT No. 9

Jim Shandy, it got darker the more Mordecai thought about it. When Sherman Randall's right-hand man, Joseph Bogard, sent word for Jim Shandy to come to the office of the American Fur Company, it was insulting proof that the American now regarded Shandy as a hireling. And when Shandy went, even though in a rage, it was an admission that the view was correct.

Shandy had to wait a half-hour before Bogard finished some business with a representative of an Eastern manufacturer. A ravine was coming from the river, and Bogard had a fire in the small stove in his office. He warmed his coffee while he talked to Shandy. "Mr. Randall requires one more step to ensure your guarantee to American."

"To hell with his step. I've done my part."

In spite of fatness, there was a certain strength in Bogard's face. "Not quite, Mr. Shandy. You're to leave at once to make sure that the Rocky Mountain train doesn't travel too fast."

"I won't. I have my word on that."

Bogard puffed out round cheeks. "Yenzer is a competent man. Then, too, it's likely that he'll be joined by Mordecai Price."

"Mordecai has got his hands full. I fear so he won't ever catch that train."

Bogard started to warn him from the stove. "Yes, you did not around his legs. 'No more!' after you had him dragged and cheated out of his possessions."

"Where'd you go last night after we met?"

"Huntin' better whiskey," Shandy grinned as he rifled the car. "I reckon I let the rest of the party last night had learned of the party."

CITY COUNCIL NAMES KING TO SCHOOL BOARD

City Council appointed Roy King to the Elba City School Board Monday for a six-year term to succeed S. Fleetwood Carley, attorney, whose term expired, and employed Hugo Mark & Co., investment bankers, of Birmingham, to represent the city in approaching financial transactions relating to construction of a city hospital and similar municipal projects.

The council received a letter from L. P. Imman, of Elba, protesting what he termed condoning of speeding by autists in the city. "A number of months ago I appeared before your committee, everyone seemed to agree with me that something should be done," his letter said.

"Since that time another patrolman has been hired, but there still exists the problem of excessive speeding," his letter continued. "I believe that we are endangering the safety of our children and adults to the operation of parking in the city."

"I suggest that you start moving to believe that we are endangering the safety of our children and adults to the operation of parking in the city."
